

Lagoon Bridge Lighting

The stone bridge carrying Yellowstone Street over the lagoon and into Sacajewa Park, built by the WPA circa 1938, originally sported light fixtures on each of sixteen stone pedestals. The fixtures were removed sometime in the 1950's, their fate unknown. You can however still see the anchor bolts, and the electrical conduits remain buried in the stonework.

retroart intends to replace the lost fixtures as a public art project. Initial parameters:

- + Work within broad historical context.
- + Encourage individual artistic expression for each pair of fixtures.
- + Offer design and construction of some of the fixtures to Park High students.

The project will be completed with support and approval of the City of Livingston and the School District.

retroart is currently seeking funding for this project. Please contact us at raffety@mcn.net or call 406-222-8718.

Livingston is a diverse and unique community, and we've described a future for ourselves that will require maintaining and expanding our special attributes.

We as a community are lacking effective tools to make this happen. retroart is focused toward changing that situation.

retroart is a private effort intending to accomplish two things:

- + Stimulate diverse expression within public space, particular to this community.
- + Provide young people an opportunity to participate.

How retroart will function:

- + Identify potential permanent improvements within public space.
- + Attract private donors to support individual projects.
- + Leverage other resources whenever possible.
- + Integrate artists and technical expertise to design, construct and install projects.
- + Offer certain projects as special subjects to selected Park High student teams.
- + Work within the support and approval of the City of Livingston, the School District and private donors.

All donations will have 501c3 status through the Livingston Center for Art and Culture.
